An Intro...

The most fascinating thing that I can draw is the human face. Sometimes my portraits are loose and gestural and other times they are more detailed and refined. I begin with quick pencil sketches, then replicate the work with a brush or fountain pen. Finally, I color the work digitally.

Many of the portraits are of fictional characters who I have idolized from television or movies as a child, while others are real people who inspired me through their own art or vision for a better world (some were just fun to draw).
